McLain Heads Client Relations at Douglas Scientific

Alexandria, MN, February 1, 2009 – Douglas Scientific, a division of Douglas Machine Inc. and provider of patented array tape automation for bioscience laboratories, announces that Craig McLain has joined the company to lead its client relations activity.

Douglas Scientific currently serves the most prominent ag biotech laboratories in the world by providing sophisticated high throughput screening technology. McLain will manage these strategic relationships and develop the company's entrance into emerging market segments.

McLain brings an array of business experiences as Douglas Scientific expands globally. Previously, McLain served as the Chief Operating Officer at American Solutions for Business, a several hundred million dollar company. He has a rich sales and marketing background to augment his operational acumen.

Dan Malmstrom, General Manager of Douglas Scientific, said this about McLain. "Craig is a superb addition to our team. He brings versatility as we scale our global operations. His executive experience, financial acumen, and sales and marketing background are just what we need to execute our vision as a global market leader."
