Douglas Scientific Launches New Service Programs

Alexandria, MN, June 22, 2009 – Douglas Scientific, a division of Douglas Machine Inc. and provider of patented array tape automation for bioscience laboratories, announces the release of new warranty and service programs to support the global deployment of its Nexar™ and Araya™ system. The new warranty and service programs were developed to ensure industry leading responsiveness and up-time for laboratory operations.

Douglas Scientific builds on the strong service heritage of its parent company, Douglas Machine Inc., which services more than 7,000 automated packaging machines for the world's most prominent consumer brand companies.

"Laboratory scientists are conducting mission critical work that can literally change the world, and we intend to deliver a service capability which complements the high quality that is built into our products," says Dan Malmstrom, General Manager of Douglas Scientific. "We back our products with a comprehensive warranty, along with resolution guarantees, to ensure that our clients are successful."

Such programs and guarantees are unprecedented in the industry. More information may be obtained by contacting Douglas Scientific.
